Sales Tax Looms As Pay-Go Plan Fails

DRIVE DUE AS HOUSE SEEKS NEW REVENUE

Legislators Turn Down Bill Including Ruml System on Forgiveness.

16 BILLIONS NEEDED

Democratic Leaders See Vote as Demand For Compromise Income Levy Proposal.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Republican leaders, promising a new drive for adoption of the modified Ruml tax plan, today said that failure of the house to act on pay-as-you-go legislation enhances the possibility of a general sales tax.

Rep. Frank Carlson (R., Kan.), author of the Carlson-Ruml bill to forgive a year's income taxes, which was approved and then rejected by the house yesterday, indicated that the drive would come when the house begins consideration of the general tax bill to raise the $16,000,000,000 in new revenue requested by President Roosevelt.

"The ways and means committee will be unable to bring out another tax bill without the whole question of pay-as-you-go being considered again," Carlson said. "I have just begun to fight.

"Without forgiveness and a withholding at the source feature, the treasury will be unable to collect sufficient funds to carry on the war unless a national sales tax is levied. They've got to get more money and get it quick."

Carlson asserted that his version of the Ruml plan would have yielded the government $3,000,000,000 more revenues this year than the present tax collection system. He contended that a withholding against wages and salaries, as proposed in plans rejected by the house, is "imperative" if the government is to prevent widespread income tax delinquency.

"We can't raise the income tax rates in an effort to collect some of this $16,000,000,000 the president has asked for unless measures

Barbers Increase Haircut Price to 75 Cents, Shaves 40

Declaring it was "none of the public's business what they have to pay," William Scott, secretary, refused this morning to tell the News-Journal the new haircut price of 75 cents and shave cost of 40 cents which the Master and Journeymen Barbers union will put in effect Thursday.

"The union is running an advertisement for the information of the barbers and they're the only ones who need to know," Scott declared.

The News-Journal had been referred to the union secretary by Walter Mapes, union president, after two union members confidentially admitted the union had voted the haircut cost from 65 to 75 cents.

CLAIM SINKINGS

Germans Say 17 Allied Merchant Ships Hit.

LONDON — (AP) — The German high command asserted today 17 heavily loaded Allied merchant ships, totalling 103,500 tons, had been sunk in the Atlantic and in the Mediterranean.

The claim, not confirmed from any Allied source, was carried on the Berlin radio and was recorded here by the Associated Press.

Pro-Nazis Get Announcements of Own Deaths.

LONDON — (AP) — Inbel, Belgian news agency, reported today that nearly all pro-Nazi Belgians in Brussels had received printed funeral cards announcing their own deaths.

WILL DIE TONIGHT

COLUMBUS — (AP) — William Patrick Jennings, 23-year-old Negro from Youngstown, is scheduled to die in the electric chair tonight for the murder of 18-year-old James Oswald White, of Youngstown last August 13.

Hits Back at Criticism of Traffic Squad

Councilman Kyle Takes Issue With Vaughn; Lauds Department.

Commending the police traffic department for alertness and efficiency in suppressing vehicular violations and protecting pedestrian travel, George C. Kyle, at-large member of council, today took issue with his colleague, Roy W. Vaughn, who said recently "the department has too many motorcycles and cruisers and needs more real patrolmen."

Kyle criticized the street department for neglect of the pedestrian safety island at Park avenue west and Main street which was damaged several weeks ago by an automobile. He recommends the installation of a pillar barricade around this island and around the one in Main street on the crosswalk leading to Central Park.

"Safety islands" Kyle declared, "are for the protection of the pedestrian rather than the motorist. Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals suggested these islands after long study but it is up to the street department to build and maintain such progressive installations.

Defending both the regular police department and the traffic section, Kyle deplored the inability of the city to employ satisfactory applicants.

"In competition with higher industrial pay rates it is hard to get 'real patrolmen' for what the majority of council are willing to pay," Kyle declared. Both police divisions have released members to the armed forces and captains are confronted with the daily problem of having a sufficient number of patrolmen to assign to all important posts.

"It would be folly to stop or reduce cruiser use to save tires and gasoline. This would permit a still greater increase in home burglaries and prowlingss in remote sections of the city. Nor can the cruiser be parked and the motor stopped because their two-way radio equipment would not then function.

"As to the need of a new traffic code, we most certainly do need a consolidated ordinance which will clarify traffic regulations and group control measures which are scattered through more than a dozen separate pieces of legislation."

FILE PROTEST

AFL, CIO Leaders Hit Soviet Execution of Unionists.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Several leaders of the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations joined with Mayor LaGuardia and Senator Mead (N. Y.) last night in protesting the execution by the Soviet government of Henryk Ehrlich and Victor Alter, Polish Jewish trade unionists.

David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies Garment Workers union and chairman of the meeting in Mecca temple, said the execution of the two "degrades the very ideals for which we are fighting."

SPICES BURNED

$75,000 Damage Estimated In Fire At Columbus.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Fire destroyed 20 barrels of valuable spices, 50,000 pounds of coffee, 200,000 pounds of peanuts, 36,000 pounds of peanut butter and 20,000 pounds of sugar in the warehouse of the Andrus-Scofield company here last night.

A company spokesman said the spices could not be replaced. F. H. Hoffman, president of the firm, declared the loss probably would exceed $75,000.

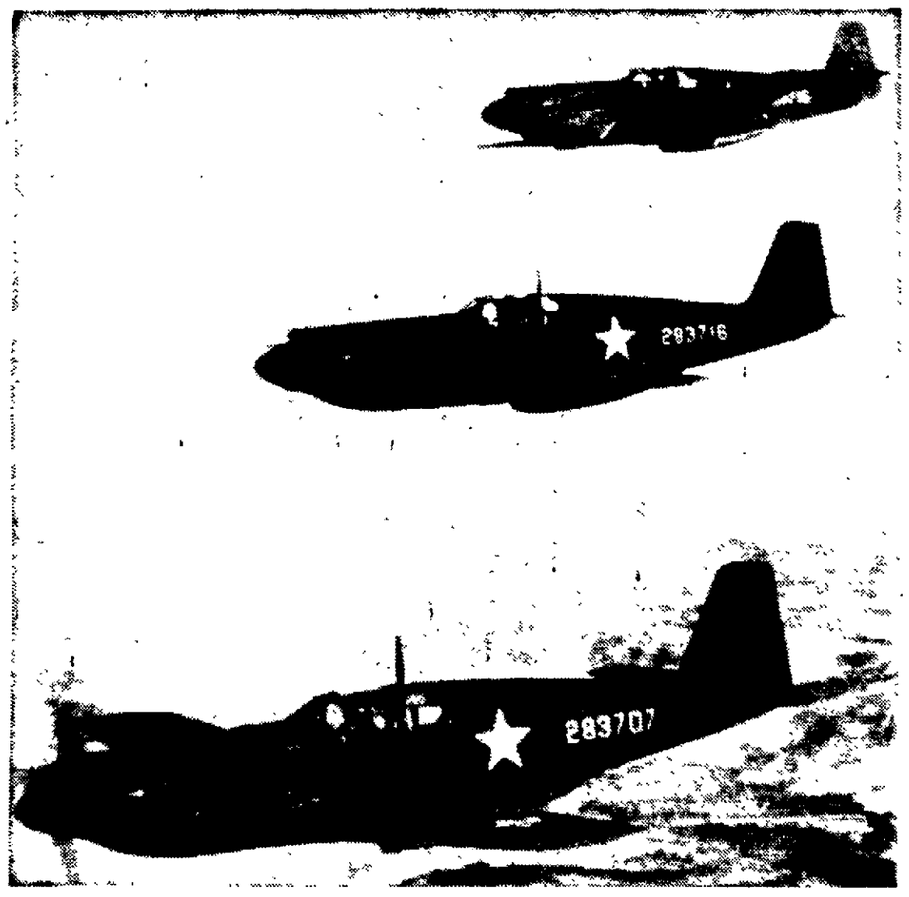
STOP FLIGHTS

British End Berlin Air Service; Airport Blasting Seen.

LONDON — (INS) — Cancellation by Germany of passenger plane flights from Berlin to Stockholm gave rise to belief today that the huge Templehof airdrome was put out of action by the Royal Air Force Monday night.

The German explanation of stoppage of service said the flights were halted "because of many torn barrage balloons drifting in over South Sweden."

Army's First Dive Bomber---400 Miles an Hour



Here are three of the North American Aviation's powerful new A-36's, dive bomber version of the Mustang design, built for the army. It is said to be the world's fastest and can do 400 miles per hour.

DATE CHANGED FOR BLACK-OUT

County and District Test To Take Place April 8, State Council Announces.

Mansfield and Richland county will undergo their initial black-out test the night of Thursday, April 8, when the war department and state defense council conduct an air raid defense trial in 19 or 20 north central Ohio counties.

Originally scheduled for Tuesday night, it was assumed by local civilian defense officials today, that the postponement was ordered, because of conflict with Army day observances on April 6 — date when the United States entered World War I in 1917. Associated Press and other wire services reporting from Columbus failed to note an explanation of the change.

In the Mansfield area, Ashland, Crawford, Holmes and Wyandot counties will be affected. The entire sector to be darkened covers 9,000 square miles with a population of around 780,000 persons. Each county area, excepting Allen, has been inspected and approved as ready for black-out tests. War plants will not be required to participate in the trial, Ralph H. Stone, state defense director, has announced.

POULTRY MEN WANT CEILING

Offer Plan to 'Unfreeze' Food Markets.

CLEVELAND — (UP) — Poultry dealers of Chicago, Detroit and three northern Ohio cities today submitted a plan to the regional Office of Price Administration designed to "unfreeze" the live poultry market.

The plan, calling for a uniform nationwide ceiling on all types and sizes of poultry with a base price set at the farm, was presented to Wayne Rice, head of the regional OPA's food unit.

Rice said he would recommend the plan to Washington.

JACK, HEINTZ HITS DATING

Married Men Told to Take Own Wives to Dinner.

CLEVELAND — (UP) — The Jack and Heintz company, paternal Cleveland war plant, today warned married male employees against "dating" girls and women who work in the company's shops.

William S. Jack, the company's outspoken president, said he took his "gloves off" in a talk to his "associates" over the public address system in the plants.

"If these men need dates so badly let them take their wives out to dinner and a movie," he said. "I'll be damned if we'll stand for married men playing around whether or not they are encouraged."

GETS THREATS

Legislator Bares Opposition To Union Control Bill.

COLUMBUS — (UP) — Rep. Earl M. French, (R., Delaware,) sponsor of legislation to regulate labor union activities, said today he had received threats because he introduced the measure.

"I have been approached by people who asked me if I was willing to face the consequences for supporting this bill," he told the United Press. Asked if physical violence had been threatened, he said the threats had not been "as definite as that."

"It is time to find out whether the people shall rule, or if a small minority will rule by terrorism," he told the house judiciary committee last night, presenting his bill.

WILL PROTEST

Akron Rubber Firms Hit Back At Wage Recommendation.

AKRON — (UP) — Akron's three major rubber companies, Goodyear Tire and Rubber, Firestone Tire and Rubber and B. F. Goodrich company, indicated today they would protest recommendations for wage increases for production and maintenance workers in the plants made by a special panel of the War Labor Board.

TRAIN KILLS TRUCK DRIVER

Walter E. Pine, 24, Dies at Crossing Near Crestline; Vehicle Demolished.

Walter E. Pine, 24, New Washington truck driver, was killed instantly Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. by a speeding Big Four passenger train which demolished the egg truck he was driving at a crossing two miles north of Crestline and scattered egg cases for several hundred feet along the tracks.

This date last Year—2.

Pine's death was the fifth fatality of the year in Richland county traffic mishaps and the second in four days. At this time last year only two persons had been killed in the county and the fifth death was not marked up until May 17.

The New Washington man, driver for the North Central Ohio Egg market, died from a broken neck as his body was thrown from the wreckage, according to Acting Coroner Blake Kohler of Richland county and Coroner O. A. Kackley of Galion, both of whom examined the body.

The accident was at the crossing on State Route 61. Authorities said the view both ways from the crossing was clear and were unable to give an explana-

FDR to Meet Top Labor Leaders In Wage Discussion

WASHINGTON — (INS) — As CIO and AFL leaders resumed labor peace talks in Washington today word was received from the White House that President Roosevelt will meet with the nation's ranking labor leaders tomorrow to discuss wage stabilization policies.

First objective of the peace parleys was to work out a practical agreement to outlaw raiding by unions. As the conference opened, the labor leaders were advised that Mr. Roosevelt would hold his frequently postponed meeting to discuss wage stabilization tomorrow.

While the question of the wage policies of the government did not enter the first sessions of the

Veterans Score In Hilarious Community Play Comedy Roles

By KEN WOODMAN

If the more than 900 persons who saw the Community Players' production of Arsenic and Old Lace at John Simpson auritorium last night had had just one bouquet to toss to their favorite member of the cast, Corinne Schettler would have undoubtedly got the flowers.

In the role of the pleasantly demented old maid who helped her sister administer arsenic and elderberry wine to lonely old gentlemen, Mrs. Schettler turned in a highly professional performance.

Her husband in real life, Judge H. H. Schettler, and her brother in the play was equally convincing. As the chap who believed he was Teddy Roosevelt, Schettler not only succeeded in looking the part from grin to stride, but he stuck to his hilarious role with a seriousness that made his incredibile lines not only credible but consistently funny.

Although he failed to look like Boris Karloff, whom he was supposed to resemble strikingly, Ruhland Isaly made the role of the murderer brother one of the outstanding parts of the show with

WORK-FIGHT HINT GIVEN DAIRY LABOR

FDR Reveals New Manpower Program To Relieve Farm Worker Shortage.

SOME TO LEAVE ARMY

Older Men Will Be 'Urged' To Return To Jobs In Dairies.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Tens of thousands were brought closer to military service today under a semi-compulsory manpower action designed primarily to relieve a shortage of 50,000 dairy workers but capable of being extended to all agriculture and essential industry.

The program, announced by President Roosevelt late yesterday, hinted broadly at the possible drafting of farm-experienced men now deferred because of age or minor physical disabilities if they refuse dairying jobs.

It also changed the system of releasing soldiers 38 years or older so that in the future they can be channeled into and kept at jobs in essential industry and agriculture subject to recall by the army upon request of the War Manpower commission.

The president's announcement, coming as draft boards were poised to begin tomorrow the reclassification of registrants still in nondeferable jobs, gave emphasis to his recent declaration he would seek to avoid direct and compulsory job-control as long as possible.

The program gave dairy workers a preferred claim on draft deferment exceeding even that recently established for essential farm workers generally, which resulted in such a strong back-to-the-farm movement that some war plants are complaining of losing workers.

But it also provides that experienced former dairy workers between 18 and 28 who have been rejected by the army for physical disability might, if they refuse to return to dairy work, be put up for reconsideration and acceptance for limited service.

Two of the program's seven

FDR DROPS HINT

Possibility of Talks Between President, Stalin Seen.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Possibilities existed today for an eventual conference between President Roosevelt and Soviet Premier Josef Stalin.

Commenting at his press conference yesterday on the recent post-war conversations held with British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, Mr. Roosevelt said he hoped that conference among leaders of United Nations members, including Russia, would continue.

Asked if this could be interpreted as meaning that he would confer with Stalin in the near future, Mr. Roosevelt replied, not today.

"Does that line, 'hope springs eternal', apply?" newsmen asked. The president smilingly nodded an affirmative.

BOYS SHOCKED

In Hospital After Being Knocked From Roof.

CLEVELAND — (UP) — William Reynolds, 11, and Paul Tollar, 10, were in Charity hospital today with severe injuries they received when they tossed a short chain across wires carrying a charge of 11,000 volts.

The shock knocked them off a garage at the rear of the Windsor substation of the municipal light plant where they had climbed yesterday.

Dayton Plant Down As Men Continue Strike.

DAYTON — (UP) — The Airtemp division of the Chrysler Motor company remained shut down today for the second day as 700 members of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (CIO) continued their "wildcat" strike in protest against delay by the War Labor Board in acting upon wage increase requests.

British Close Behind, Yanks Pressing Flank

Americans Hammer Rommel on 100-Mile Front as First Army Opens Major Offensive Against Enemy In Tunis-Bizerte Zone.

(By Associated Press War Editor)

Allied headquarters announced today that British Eighth army troops were streaming deep into the Gabes bottleneck, in rapid pursuit of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's retreating columns, and U. S. troops were reported hammering Rommel's "escape corridor" in three sectors on a 100-mile front.

Simultaneously, London heard that the British First army had opened a major offensive against Col.-Gen. Jurgen von Arnim's Axis army in the Tunis-Bizerte zone.

A bulletin from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters said the Eighth army had swept 12 miles beyond Gabes to capture Oudref, directly in the Gabes gap, while in the north the British First army recaptured Sedjenane.

Sedjenane lies only 35 miles southwest of the big Axis-held naval base at Bizerte.

Capture of Sedjenane marked a 14-mile British advance from Djebel Abiod.

An Algiers broadcast said British warships were bombarding Marshal Rommel's columns fleeing along the coastal road north of Gabes.

The radio also broadcast a report the British fleet had landed troops at Stax 70 airline miles north of Gabes, but London naval quarters said there was no confirmation.

Allied headquarters said in general terms American troops under Lieut.-Gen. George S. Patton, jr., were battering their way eastward into Rommel's flank, while other reports pictured U. S. troops as locked in violent battles with the Germans in the sectors of Ousseltia, Faid and Maknassy. Field dispatches said the Americans driving toward the sea from Maknassy had beaten off three German tank attacks.

The Americans driving from Maknassy were last reported only 30-odd miles from the sea, at the nearest point, and some 50 miles west of the port of Mahares. Still another U. S. column was thrusting toward the key Axis airfield at Kairouan.

Axis communiques described the battle in the vaguest terms.

Italian headquarters said the Allies unleashed "violent new attacks" yesterday; the German high command asserted "all attacks failed again in view of the determined resistance of our troops."

SPECULATION: Signs Point To Stepped-Up Invasion Moves

(By United Press)

LONDON—Speculation over the impending Allied invasion—or invasions—of Europe increased today and a German spokesman acknowledged that the crescendoing Anglo-American aerial offensive had reached a scale which might presage the opening of a western front.

Though well-informed Allied sources cautioned that the date of the invasion was at least weeks and perhaps months away, evidence that preparations are reaching an advanced stage was seen in the tightening of travel restrictions in British coastal areas and Prime Minister Winston Churchill's disclosure that British troops "are in position" on undisclosed fronts.

The Anglo-American aerial offensive, which high Allied officials already have announced is designed to soften Hitler's European fortress, was believed to have gone into another lull last night, presumably because of bad weather over the continent.

However, Stockholm dispatches revealed that the Germans had no illusions over being given any protracted respite from the rain of Allied bombs. One German spokesman was quoted as saying in Berlin that Germany is "under no illusions about the possibilities of sleeping soundly nights."

From another German spokesman, Stockholm said, came the frankest admission to date as to

NIGHT ATTACK: Lone 'Fort' Sinks Jap Warship, Routs Three

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(INS)—The 29th raid of the month on Kiska was reported today by the navy in a communique which said that heavy and medium U. S. Army bombers blasted the Jap runway, camp area, and gun installations.

(By Associated Press)

A lone American Flying Fortress, attacking in pitch-black night, was officially credited today with probably sinking a large Japanese destroyer and putting three others to flight in the waters off northern New Guinea.

"It is believed that any attempt to deliver supplies failed," Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said, referring to the exploit which occurred in the area where Allied fliers destroyed a 22-ship Japanese convoy early in March.

Other Allied warplanes pounded the Japanese bases at Lae, Salamaua and Finschhafen in New Guinea, and dropped 1,000-pound bombs on the enemy base at Gasmata, New Britain.

A single Allied reconnaissance plane, flying over the Bismarck sea between New Guinea and New Britain, was reported to have shot down four of nine Japanese planes in a running battle. The Allied plane returned safely to its base.

On the Burma-India front, RAF fighter planes were reported to have damaged 13 of 22 Japanese bombers and fighters attempting to attack an Allied air base in Bengal province, India.

At least five of the enemy planes

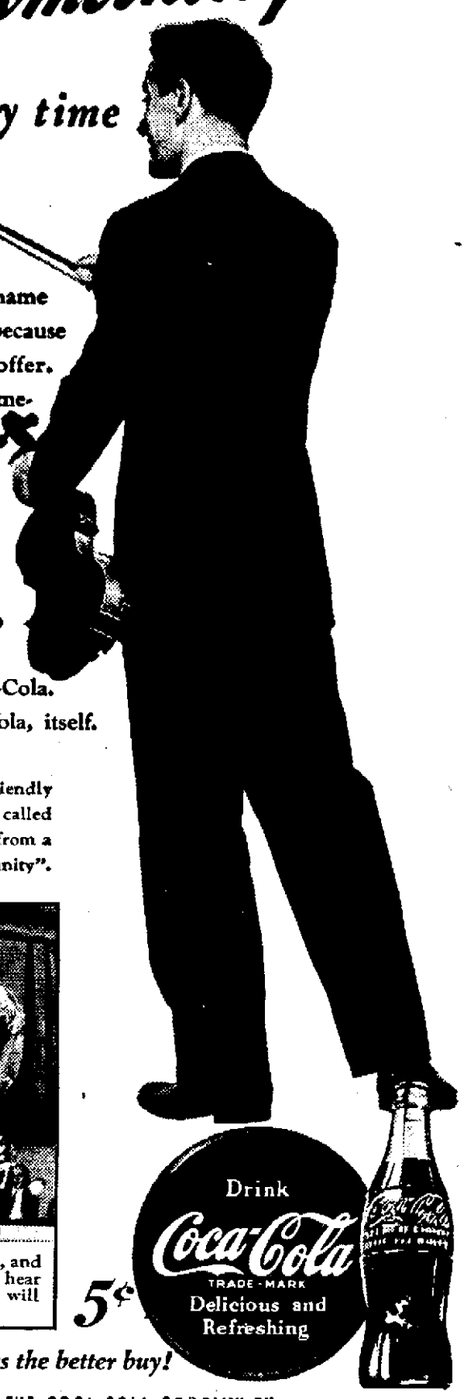
That Extra Something!

...You can spot it every time



"SPOTLIGHT Bands", the radio program broadcast over Blue Network every week night for Coca-Cola, features the nation's favorite name bands. Their names mean something because their bands have something extra to offer. Coca-Cola got where it is by offering something that more than quenches thirst. It brings a delightful after-sense of refreshment, too.

In ice-cold Coca-Cola you find quality you count on. You find delicious taste that sets it apart. You find refreshment that goes into energy. Anybody can make a soft drink, but only The Coca-Cola Company makes Coca-Cola. The only thing like Coca-Cola is Coca-Cola, itself.

It's natural for popular names to acquire friendly abbreviations. That's why you hear Coca-Cola called Coke. Both mean the same thing... "coming from a single source, and well known to the community".

Lines are put in, stages fixed, loudspeakers hooked up, and rehearsal begins. Soon, the boys in uniform will hear their favorite band in person just as their families will on their home radios.

Cecile Marti will draw charcoal maps. Delia Evans, chairman of the World Fellowship committee of the Y. W. C. A. and Lieut. Helen M. Alkire, recruiting officer of the WAACs, will talk with a Lenten meditation, led by Cecile Marti, concluding the program.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, April 1.

Sudden and undermining influences seem to threaten the constructive efforts and programs of this day. There may be a breaking down in both business and personal relations. However, at the same time a subduing and balancing of the temperament might be brought to bear on eccentric or wayward tendencies, with happy results.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year in which the final results may be determined by the firm, resolute and logical use of restraint, reason and sense, counterbalancing a disposition to eccentric, impulsive or reckless outbursts of temperament.

A child born on this day while having sound mentality and profound insight yet may be swayed by emotional or erratic impulses to its detriment.

High Style Fashions, Fancy Work

MARIAN MARTIN

Make this as your first Spring street dress from Marian Martin Pattern 9337. There's a very jaunty military effect to the buttoning line—see how it swings into the skirt panel. Take your choice of a round or V-shaped neck; a pull-through button belt or a part-way sash.

Pattern 9337 may be ordered only in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42. Size 16 requires 3⅞ yards 35-inch fabric.

Send Sixteen Cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Write plainly Size, Name, Address, Style Number.

An extra Ten Cents brings our Spring Pattern Book—a whole collection of economical wartime styles.

Send your order to The Mansfield News-Journal, Pattern Department, 232 West 18th St., New York, N. Y.

Express your devotion to Uncle Sam—with your needle! Make this pair of patriotic panels embroidered with the stars and stripes and many other motifs dear to the heart of every American. Fine for school, clubrooms or your own home. Pattern 572 contains a transfer pattern of two 5x7 inch panels; color charts; materials required; stitches.

Send Eleven Cents in coins for this pattern to The Mansfield News-Journal, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Write plainly Pattern Number, your Name and Address.

District Nurses To Meet Thursday

Members of District No. 5 of the Ohio State Nurses association, meeting at 8 p. m. Thursday with Miss Faye Chamberlain, 33 Penn avenue, will hear Miss Ruth Denning, industrial hygiene consultant of the Ohio department of health.

All industrial nurses of Mansfield, Richland, Ashland, Knox and Crawford counties have been urged to attend and the meeting is open to all nurses, according to Mrs. Margaret S. Adams, district president.

SURPRISE PARTY.

Forty friends and relatives attended a surprise party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Sackman, 605 Stocking avenue, in honor of the 18th anniversary of their wedding. The evening was spent playing cards, and refreshments were served.

GRANGES MEET AT FITCHVILLE

NEW LONDON — The annual dinner-meeting of the Fitchville and Townsend granges was held at Fitchville recently, with approximately 75 grangers present.

A short business session was held and there was a covered-dish dinner at noon.

Highlighting the afternoon's program was a general discussion on "Soil Erosion and Tree Planting." Short talks were given by Masters Wolfe and Bauer and other visitors.

HOME ON VACATION

CRESTLINE — Second Lieut. Harry Sprang, jr., of Ohio State Medical college, is spending several days between semesters with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sprang. Sprang was elected toastmaster for the alumni banquet of the Alpha Kappa Kappa medical fraternity at a Columbus hotel this Wednesday evening.

MOTORIST FINED

MILLERSBURG — Jane Meisel, 25, Athens, was fined $25 and costs by Justice William Close when she pleaded guilty to operating an automobile without a license. She made payment and was released. R. J. Shaw, state highway patrolman, made the arrest near Moreland Friday afternoon.

The tin used to solder parts in a medium army tank would make 10,000 tin cans.

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

"Mary!" Noel protested, and I knew he had not meant to utter her name, but was so bewildered by the role she had played as to be incapable of coherent speech.

When they were gone, Olga spoke to her daughter.

"Olina, dear," she said, "you were also at that early rehearsal. If you are too tired to stay up longer, we will all excuse you, I know," and though Olga did not glance at us, we all realized this was a polite but insistent dismissal of her daughter.

Olina took her cue at once, and I suspected she was glad of the chance to slip away and go over in memory her evening with Georges.

"I am very fatigued, Mama," she said, "and I shall be glad to be excused."

She went, after graceful adieux to all of us, to her bedroom on the other side of the dining room, well out of earshot of anything we might say if the sound proof doors between the sitting room and dining room were closed. Olga attended to that as soon as Olina had gone into her own room.

"I am sorry my Philip, to be—what do you say over here?—a nuisance," Olga then said, "but I am sure I feel a draft. Would you mind closing the door? And dear Madge, do sit down. I want to be selfish and keep you and your husband a little longer.

"We are very glad to be kept, aren't we, Dicky?" I said, and he supported me stanchly.

"Don't know of anything I'd rather do," he said, then moved toward the fireplace. "Would you like me to do a job on this?" he asked.

"I'd love to have you attend to it," Olga said. "The fire is getting low, and though Philip does won't ders with it, I suspect he doesn't altogether enjoy it."

Her husband smiled a bit frostily. "I could list at least a dozen preferable occupations," he said. "Go ahead, Dicky, with my blessing—and my thanks."

"I'll try to do a good job," Dicky promised, and in a few minutes the fire was blazing gloriously as we all relaxed comfortably before it.

We chattered two or three minutes, then Olga addressed me directly.

"I suppose I should talk to you alone, Madge, about what I have on my mind, but we have no secrets from our husbands, and would only have to waste time telling them later.

"So do you mind if we discuss Mary's remarkable dramatic portrayal tonight, or is there some reason why you do not wish to talk about it? I have the conviction that your husband and mine are as bewildered as I am about her behavior, and that you have the key to it."

Dicky grinned lazily at her.

"To quote a famous speech, 'you said a mouthful, queen,'" he said. "I already have told your husband that my spouse always knows where the body is buried, and usually has helped dig the grave."

He turned his grin on me as Olga laughed delightedly, and I could not resist returning his infectious smile.

"If all you're waiting for, my patient Griselda, is my august permission, the scepter is extended," he said. "I'm not denying that I'd welcome some inside information on that brat's activities myself."

MRS. SEYBOLD NAMED TOURIST CLUB HEAD

Annual Election Conducted During Meeting at Home of Mrs. Valmore; Contribution Voted for Society for Cancer Control.

MRS. O. L. SEYBOLD was elected to serve a two-year term as president of the Tourist club at a meeting of the club yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. S. Valmore on Cook road.

Elected to serve with Mrs. Seybold are Mrs. Elmer Post, vice-president, Mrs. R. W. Cellars, secretary, and Mrs. Harry Bowers, treasurer.

At the business meeting members of the club voted to contribute to the American Society for the Control of Cancer.

News of the day was discussed by Mrs. C. C. Wadsworth, Mrs. George Bowers and Mrs. Charles Abele. Mrs. Wadsworth spoke of the home safety program of the Red Cross and of Sweden, its neutrality, its preparedness against aggressors, and the country's heritage of clean and vigorous living.

Mrs. George Bowers discussed the new Jefferson Memorial to be dedicated in Washington, D. C., April 13. For her subject of discussion, Mrs. Abele chose the "T" flags given by the treasury department, meat rationing and the Gideon Bible society.

Mrs. John T. Shook presented a paper on "The National Music of America." In her discussion of the Negro minstrel shows she said that these have been somewhat discounted but they have contributed much to American music.

She also spoke of the works of George Gershwin, Irving Berlin, Walter Damrosch, Paul Whiteman and Victor Herbert and their contributions to American music. She said that simplicity and directness must be the qualities of national music, citing "Summertime" by Gershwin and "God Bless America" as national in scope.

Mrs. Knote Serves As Hostess for Fortnight Club

Mrs. Anna Knote was hostess to the Fortnight club members when they met at the Women's Club last evening.

Miss June Shires was in charge of the program and spoke on the Hudson Bay company tracing its development from the beginning in 1668 to the present.

Mrs. Dudley Ballinger of Meadville, Pa., who is visiting her sister, Miss Shires, was a guest at the meeting.

The next meeting will be held April 6 at the Women's Club with Miss Mary Engwiler as hostess.

Give Program for Hedges Mothers

The Hedges Mothers club met Tuesday afternoon at Hedges school with Mrs. Paul Stahl in charge of the program.

Games and contests replaced the regular program with Mrs. Pete Grassel winning the door prize. Refreshments were served the mothers by the Hedges teachers. Miss Emily Palmer was in charge of the refreshments and Miss Lucille Beattie presided at the tea table.

The next meeting of the group is scheduled for April 27.

SINGS AT LEESVILLE

CRESTLINE — The Crestline choral club sang a group of three numbers on the program presented by the Parent-Teacher association at the Leesville school Tuesday evening.

TO LIVE WITH LOVE +++

CHAPTER XXX

They rode in silence, and the tenseness which Freda and Ian had tried desperately to avoid lay excitingly between them.

Finally Bill said, "I don't suppose you've seen the evening paper."

"No, I haven't. Young Ian took it away for the comics." She turned her head a little and looked at him. But she couldn't bear it. It hurt . . . She wanted to move closer to him and put her arm through his as she had done in the past and say, "Open the windshield, Bill. I like the wind to tear through my hair. It makes me feel young and crazy."

He said, "The divorce went through. There was a small notice about it in the paper tonight. It's—it's all over."

After a moment she said "If you're glad, then I'm glad for you."

"If I'm glad!"

The Brentwood Arms rose tall and forbidding before them. A dim light burned in the spacious lobby. As Bill slowly brought the car to the curb, a doorman sprang to attention.

Bill got out and opened the car door for her (a courtesy he had neglected in later years) and together they walked inside to the elevator.

"There's no operator on at this time of night," she said. "But I can see myself up. Thank you for bringing me home."

"Oh, that's all right. It was nothing."

The elevator came down and she entered it . . . closing him out.

When the elevator stopped, she stepped off and walked quietly down the long hall to her apartment door. Opening her white purse for her key, she drew out an envelope. She had intended to mail this earlier in the day! It must be mailed! It must be mailed at once! The message must reach Clive without delay.

Written with great difficulty last night, re-read this morning, addressed, sealed and stamped, the letter to Clive had been in her purse all day and all day its contents had been running through her mind.

She returned quickly to the elevator and went down and through the lobby to the street.

The doorman said, seeing the letter, "I'll mail it for you, Mrs. Sturtevant."

"Thank you, but I'll do it. The box isn't far."

The street was dark and deserted. As she walked to the mail box on the corner, she went over in her mind once more what she had written to Clive last night:

Clive, dear,

I received your last letter in which you asked for a postponement of our marriage. In the autumn and not before, you said, could you get away.

Clive, we have heard so much recently about "our wall of life." The American way, they mean, of course. But I've been thinking lately a good bit about your way of life and mine, our individual ways. What we had in Florida was good and lovely and wonderful. I shall never regret it and I shall always remember it as the most exciting thing that ever happened to me and thank you with all my heart for it.

It was an oasis for me, as you must surely know. And I loved you . . . I loved you in a way new and exciting for me and as I had never loved anyone before because I have learned that young love and mature love are two very different things, each unforgettable in its time.

Dear, I am not afraid of sharing the hardships of your itinerant life. My own life was very simple indeed until a few years ago. I am not afraid of change or new people or new surroundings. I am not afraid of having less, materially, than I have now. But what I am afraid of is that we had only a beautiful romance. We were wonderful playmates, Clive, but I do not believe you ever intended for me to be other than that to you.

I do not believe that you really want to marry anybody—yet. Marriage demands so much of the personal freedom you cherish. In Florida you did want to marry me, but that was Florida, you are thinking now, and we were new in the discovery of each other and we could not let each other go with a tender good-bye.

We did not want to relinquish what we had found, and foolishly we believed that the glow would last in other more real places. But we were only wishing, foolishly, too, that life was different and human beings less imperfect than they really are.

Can I censure you because I read in your letter a straining at the bond we made? They have been sweet letters, but I have read in them undercurrents of restlessness and a desire not to belong to anyone but yourself. Will you censure me and hate me because I say now in all honesty that I don't want to marry you and that I think it would be a pitiful mistake for us to carry on what was for you and me only a lovely interlude?

We cannot prolong a beautiful sunset. The colors fade and the darkness comes. But does the darkness make the sunset less beautiful in memory? We cannot prolong the story of us, Clive, however we may wish that life and we were different.

You will say, "She is still in love with Bill." Have I ever denied it? I am. I am. His is the only way of life I have known since I was eighteen. And he is the only husband I shall ever have.

You who have so much understanding of women, try to understand this one and forgive her . . . for writing the letter you could not write for fear of hurting me . . .

Carol opened the slot and the letter slid in. The slot closed with a squeak. She bit into her lip, thinking, "I wrote it when I didn't know that Bill was free. I wrote it when I didn't know where he was or if Evelyn's leaving him had hurt him so that he had run away. But now he's back and the way he said, 'Am I glad!' told me he wasn't hurt at all . . . Evelyn for Bill, and Clive for me. But for Clive and me it's better because we have nothing to regret and we can keep our memories sweet . . . I had to know Clive before I could understand what happened to Bill. Perhaps I couldn't forgive Bill if I hadn't known Clive."

Living solves the enigmas of life. Living writes the answers to the questions.

Pushing back her hair which a sudden wind had blown across her face, she walked a few steps and then stood very still . . .

Bill's car was parked across the street and Bill was standing beside it, looking at her. He had not gone. He had watched her come out of the building and mail a letter and stand a few minutes at the mail box . . . He had not gone . . . After he left her he had driven around the block and parked his car opposite the apartment house in the hope of seeing the lights go on in her apartment . . . Just to see the lights go on.

She smiled. It was as though she held out her arms to him . . . so quickly did he come to her.

Western Film.

Every calibre of gun-firing piece used in the old west during the blood-and-thunder cattle rustling days following the Civil war may be seen in action in "American Empire," the story of pioneer days in Texas, which opens at the Madison theater. The Kern county authorities (the picture was filmed in Kernville, Calif.) extended the movie company a permit to use fire-arms in the vicinity. Among the weapons were Colt frontier models, period guns before 1865, saddle and scabbard guns, and plenty of sawed-off shotguns. Starring in "American Empire" are Richard Dix, Preston Foster, Leo Carrillo, who plays the lovable bad man. Second attraction is "Most Dangerous Game," with Joel McCrea and Fay Wray.

Jimmy Lymper, a grand little guy with big, and grand, ideas, isn't kidding himself nor the Galion populace on the subject of what's expected of his Orangemen gridders next fall in N. C. O. league combat.

"N. C. O. league opponents have tabbed us as the team most likely to win the championship next fall," Jimmy said as he passed out uniforms to his heroes for spring practice the other day.

This puts Jim and his gridders out on a limb, but Lymper doesn't mind the situation a bit. After a week of training he reports his boys are showing the finest spirit of any squad he has coached.

Lymper has come a long way since that day early last fall, when, after watching his gridders in a practice scrimmage with Madison, he told me:

"Don't make us look too good. We're coming along, but we've got a long way to go." And then, confidentially, "But we've got most of these boys back next year, and watch us go then."

And so, confidentially, I passed the word along to a league boasting powerhouse teams at Marion and Ashland: "Watch out for Galion in 1943."

Taking over a team that hadn't won a game in so long its staunchest supporters were ashamed to bring up the subject, Lymper spent last fall not only building a football team, but building confidence in that team.

He set the example by bursts of rhetoric that were little short of plain cocky, threatening to beat every team he played, refusing to concede defeat at the hands of Marion and Ashland until those teams were met, and then brazenly informing the two big boys of the league: "We're going to beat you guys next year."

This confidence building program looks all right to me. Teams without confidence can very easily get into the habit of losing ball games, and crying about bad breaks. A cocky team is usually alert, and making its own breaks.

That thing called over-confidence usually isn't too much confidence at all. It's complacency, taking the opposition too cheaply. I don't think Jim intends to let his boys take that attitude.

Of course some of the Galion boys didn't need confidence building. I got a letter last fall signed: "Two Galion Stars."

Lymper takes a page from the Massillon-Mansfield book when he announces that the Orangmen next fall will be the "best dressed, best protected team in the league." Plenty of proper equipment has long been an important item in both the Massillon and Mansfield systems, and their players, according to equipment salesmen, have been better protected from injury than those of most Ohio colleges.

The idea is that an injured star isn't doing the team any good sitting on the bench. Diversion of gate receipts to equipment pays dividends.

The Orangemen are going in for offense next fall, and Lymper doesn't care who knows it.

"We will definitely go in for more touchdowns," declares Jim, "and the famous Chicago Bear "T" formation will be added to the single wing. Emphasis will be placed on speed and good condition, which I hope will be enough to outscore most of our opponents

Lymper expects to visit the parents of each member of his squad personally this spring, seeking their cooperation in the training program.

Brownies Prep for Flag Bid

Luke Sewell Believes It's Time To End Jinx.

By LEO H. PETERSEN

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — The St. Louis Browns never have won an American league penant, but this is the year that Manager Luke Sewell hopes to break the jinx.

A surprise third last season, the Browns were rated as one of the clubs to beat in 1943 when they went into spring training. Since then the draft has been operating on the St. Louis roster, however, and the championship hopes have been dimmed considerably.

First the Browns lost Walt Judnich, their hard-hitting outfielder to the service. Then came the 1-A reclassification of Vernon Stephens, their regular shortstop, and Glenn McQuillen, an outfielder. Until then, the Browns hadn't felt the inroads which the war has made on baseball's manpower.

But with the draft hitting the other teams, too, Sewell feels the loss of those three men will not be fatal to his club's chances.

He is grooming Mark Christman, a good fielder but only a .276 hitter with Toledo, for Stephens' place with George McQuinn at first, Don Gutteridge at second and Harland Clift at third filling out the infield. He has one veteran utility man, Don Heffner, and three rookies—Floyd Baker, who hit .326 with San Antonio; Robert Dillinger, a .305 batter with Toledo; and Charles Stevens, another Toledo graduate with a .250 average.

The loss of Judnich and McQuillen left the Browns with only four outfielders—Chet Laabs, Anthony Criscola, Mike Kreevich and Milton Byrnes. Laabs and Criscola were with the club last year; Kreevich was with Philadelphia, where he hit only .255, while Byrnes is a rookie who hit .254 with Toledo. The group doesn't measure up to the usual standards of a major league outfield.

Frank Hayes and Rick Ferrell probably will divide the first string catching duties with Joe Schultz, up from Memphis where he hit .330, and Ardys Keller, a Toledo graduate, fighting for the reserve berth.

If Sewell's luck with the reformation of cast-off pitchers continues he is likely to come up with an adequate mound corps. There are seven holdovers from last year—George Caster, Dennis Galehouse, Al Hollingsworth, Bob Muncriet, John Niggeling, Fred Ostermueller and Steve Sundra. They won 63 while losing 13 games last year.

Among the newcomers are four former major leaguers, headed by Paul Dean, who won 19 and lost eight with Houston last year. Sewell is hopeful that he has regained the effectiveness which made him one of the best pitchers in the National league until arm trouble developed. The three others are Archie McKain, Nelson Potter and Woodrow Rich. McKain won 17 and lost 11 with Toledo. Potter was 18-8 with Louisville while Rich, an outstanding prospect when he first came up with the Red Sox, won 10 and lost the same number with Indianapolis.

Other hurling candidates are Sidney Peterson, a 17-game winner from San Antonio; William Seinsoth, who won 21 at New Orleans, and Fred Sanforth, who won nine and lost the same number with Toledo.

Hockey Playoffs Become U. S. Final

NEW YORK—(AP)—Detroit and Boston will have their National League Hockey teams contest for the Stanley Cup at the expense of two Canadian cities, Toronto and Montreal, who made the sport popular.

The Detroits last night eliminated Toronto, 3 to 2, in an overtime period with Rookie Adam Brown scoring the decisive goal. Boston, in turn, made it an all U. S. Final by stopping Montreal, 5 to 4, also in an extra period.

The best of seven series for the Stanley Cup starts at Detroit Thursday.

Wyoming Captures Collegiate Title

NEW YORK—(AP)—The national collegiate basketball title, constant property of the Big Ten conference until Stanford broke the spell last season, is back in the far west for another season with Wyoming on the throne.

The Cowboys had speed enough to wallop Georgetown, eastern representative, 46 to 34, last night.

Both teams will remain here for Thursday night's double header with Wyoming playing St. John's of Brooklyn, national invitational tourney winner, and Georgetown battling Toledo, second to St. John's in the preliminary.

DEPEND ON HURLERS

LAKEWOOD, N. J. —(AP)— The New York Giants, who hope their pitching staff will make up in part for the loss of Johnny Mize, have 13 hurlers in camp with Ace Adams and Sal Maglie still to report. Both are expected momentarily.

DEM BUMS APPOINTED WAR BOND SALESMEN

BEAR MOUNTAIN, N. Y.—(INS)—"Dem bums," who sold themselves lock, stock and barrel to flatbush ball fans are going to do their stint in selling for Uncle Sam, it was learned today.

The United States treasury department has appointed the Brooklyn team as official salesmen in Brooklyn during the second war loan drive beginning April 12 in which the goal for the borough of churches is set at $50,000,000.

Ritz Margin Sliced Again

Silver Kings Within Five Games of Top.

Ritz Nite Club's leading margin in the Transportation bowling league was trimmed to five games last night by Silver Kings, who scored a shut-out win over Morgan Cleaners, while Ritz was taking a 2-1 nod over Schenk Auto.

Coolridge golf course swept team scoring honors with a 2580 total and high game of 915, while C. Reep of Coolridge had high individual total with 568. Ellis of Motor Cargo rolled high game of 211.

Curves Bother Redleg Rookie

Kelleher Sees Loss of Outfield Job Again.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — (AP) — Additional hitting drills are on tap for Frankie Kelleher, Cincinnati Red outfielder, this week following yesterday's plate display during which Rhinelander hurlers threatened to curve-ball him out of his regular left field job.

Experiencing the same difficulty which prevented him from playing regularly last year, Kelleher had a "bad day" against the sharp-breaking offerings of Ray Starr, Johnny Vander Meer, Elmer Riddle and a couple of other flingers. Before yesterday, Kelleher's bat display was one of the highlights of spring training, but Manager Bill McKechnie is confident the youngster will come through.

Coming to the Reds last July with the reputation as the minor league's outstanding slugger, Kelleher was "round-housed" to a pinch-hitter's role ere long but his spring training exploits this year boosted him into leading contention for the regular left garden spot.

McKechnie indicated Eric "The Red" Tipton would start in left field against the Chicago White Sox Saturday at Louisville in the first exhibition game. Starr is expected to start on the hill.

Westie Doubles Tourney Opens

J. Romig and R. McKinney took the lead in the Westinghouse doubles tournament at Colony alleys last night with a 1268 total as Romig turned in a 691 count, and a series without handicap of 201-169-243.

Others in the first ten are: Warren-Rabal 1258; Jocobs-Valentine 1250; Nichols-Whisler 1239; Holton-Smith 1236; Kithcart-Schaefer 1226; Johnson-Sonner 1215; Collins-Zeides 1213; Baker-Ruhl 1210; and Day-Byers 1209.

DRIVING 'EM BATTY

Pat McCullough, who served as bat boy for the Athletics and Phillies for ten years, is managing the soldier baseball team at Camp Livingston, La., because, he says, "I'm the only one in camp with any sort of major league experience."

Association Loses 227 to Service

COLUMBUS —(AP)— American Association baseball teams have lost 227 men to the armed services and the total probably will reach 250 before the season opens April 29, President George Trautman announced today.

Toledo's roster tops the list with 100, but many of these are players from other St. Louis Brown farm teams placed on the Mudhen roster when their clubs suspended operation for the duration of the war.

* * *

The number in service from other association clubs are: Louisville 39; Columbus 32; Minneapolis 18; Kansas City 13; St. Paul 12, Indianapolis seven and Milwaukee six.

Tribe Meets Purdue Nine

Indians Have Trouble With Calvert Curves.

LAFAYETTE, Ind.—(AP)—Cleveland's Indians get their second taste of outside opposition today when they face Purdue university's nine, bolstered by hurlers from the Tribe's own ranks.

The Cleveland hurling corps will be divided among the two teams with Jim Bagby, Al Milnar, Joe Heving, Vern Kennedy, Ray Poat, and Jack Salveson doing the chores for the day, three against, and three for the Tribe.

Only Al Smith and Mel Harder have yet to pitch in a formal game during the Indians' northern training routine.

Tribal bats swung crazily yesterday at the pitches of rookie Paul Calvert, the bespectacled French-Canadian, who created a sensation by serving up an assortment of baffling stuff to the American leaguers.

A sign of the times, indicating again the manpower shortage in baseball, appeared with the presence of pitchers in batting practice and Manager Lou Boudreau remarking that some Indian pennant hopes hinge in part on pinch hitting value of some of the Tribe's hurlers.

At Cleveland, Vice-president Roger Peckinpaugh disclosed Jeff Heath, the Tribe's only holdout, has refused to sign a contract including a home attendance bonus clause and was insisting on only a 10 per cent cut from his 1942 salary.

Heath, at his Seattle, Washhome, said he was "willing to go along on a fair compromise over salary but the club just has been holding tight" and "I hope to get back to play for Cleveland or any other club."

Attempt to Form Baseball League

The question of whether Mansfield will have sandlot baseball this summer may be decided tomorrow when managers of teams interested in entering a proposed Y. M. C. A. Commercial league meet at the association at 7:30 p. m.

According to present plans, the loop is to consist of between four and six teams, each team backed by a Mansfield business firm. There is no age limit for players.

Games are to be played on Sunday afternoons at Liberty park and possibly the Fairgrounds. It is necessary to obtain permission from Richland County Commissioners before the latter diamond is available.

PRACTICE GAME

FRENCH LICK, Ind. —(AP)— Chicago's Cubs and White Sox get together today in what executives of both sides call a strictly informal practice game that is not to be regarded as a part of the annual city series. Paul Derringer will start on the mound for the Cubs and Lefty Ed Smith for the White Sox.

VINCE REPORTING

MUNCIE, Ind. —(AP)—Outfielder Vince DiMaggio, who has remained at the hospital bedside of his wife in California, is expected in the Pittsburgh Pirate camp today or tomorrow.

TROSKY TURNS DOWN BID BY PHILLIES

HERSHEY, Pa. — (U.P.)— The Philadelphia Phillies have failed to induce First Baseman Hal Trosky, former Cleveland Indians' slugger, to return to the game.

Manager Bucky Harris said Trosky refused an offer to play first for the Phillies this season and that he "intends to sit out" the season on his Iowa farm.

Jule Leathers Hits 661 Mark

Ties Skeet Wolf For High Game of 247.

Jule Lethers was on the ball in the Mansfield Tire bowling league yesterday, clouting a series of 214-200-247 for a 661 total and league scoring honors.

Skeet Wolf tied him for high game of 247 as he turned in a 620 series. Bill Fenn chalked up a 602 total.

"The Authority on Authorities"

BETTER THAN A PRESENT

More welcome than a birthday gift is a flash of inspiration that enables you to see a pretty play which will bring in a puzzling contract. Most players recall years later some particular maneuver which enabled them to save the day, in a spot where the first survey indicated they would be beaten. The joy from such a play is not a thing of the moment merely, but something which can be relished over and over again whenever it is recalled—and related to some unwilling listener.

That same contract was reached also at the other table in the team match, but the declarer was set, although he got the same lead, the diamond Q. That contractor used the dummy's A to discard a club. Since this left him another club loser, with no way to discard or ruff it, his entire contract depended upon one defender having the three smallest outstanding trumps and the other only the Q-J doubleton. That flimsy possibility did not eventuate, so he was set.

But this fellow saw a way to make it. He played low from dummy on the diamond Q, which he ruffed in his own hand. Then he scored the heart A, and the spade K and Q, carefully saving the A to make his planned play look as fancy as possible. Next he led to the heart K. Now he called the diamond A and on it discarded the spade A. That unblocked the suit, so that the spade J and 10 enabled him to discard both of his low clubs. With only the heart Q still outstanding as a winner for the defense, he made his contract.

"Pretty lucky to have that work," commented an opponent. Not so lucky, at that. All that he had to do was find three hearts in the hand of the defender who also held either three or four spades — nothing like as improbable as what the declarer sought at the other table.

MIXED PRICES CLOUD STOCK MART TRENDS

Cash Deal Ruling on Low Price Issues Boosts Share Averages.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Prices were mixed at the opening of the stock exchange today and held generally to a narrow range.

Off a shade at the start, among others, were Bethlehem, U. S. Steel and Boeing. Edging higher were American Can, Eastman Kodak, Great Northern Preferred, Standard Oil (NJ) and Chesapeake & Ohio.

Boardroom commentators were interested in statistics showing that since the announcement late Friday that transfers of low priced stocks would be limited to cash dealds only after April 1, the ten most active shares had averaged $14.60, as against $7.10 in the first five days of last week. The curb exchange last night followed the big board with a similiar announcement.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON — Mutual advantage, not sentiment, is the only basis on which we can hope to maintain satisfactory relations with other nations. That is something we have to learn now because we are going to be mixed up with other nations for a long time.

American officials who have gone out to China overflowing with warm sentimental ideas often have come back home disillusioned and cynical, if not embittered. Traffic between America and China is that way—starry-eyed going out, and fishy-eyed coming back.

Clapper

I have been told, by old China hands, that this is a common occurience and that if you wait long enough the patient will usually swing back into a middle ground. Gradually a normal outlook will develop, and it will be realistic, recognizing the merits as well as the faults, and above all recognizing the national advantages to us as against the liabilities that we must carry in order to enjoy the advantages.

For instance, as to China, you figure that there was much waste, much squeeze," on the Burma road It was not an efficient operation by our standards Yet it helped keep China going, helped keep China in the war helped sustain the hope of future effective warfare against the Japanese The net still seems to have been our way.

There hasn't been nearly the same tendency to sentimentalize about Britain as about China. Apparently they have no tendency in Britain to sentimentalize about us Which is the way it should be There is no reason why every American should like every Englishman or vice versa, any more than that all Englishmen should like each other or all Americans should like each other. An alliance doesn't necessarily make two peoples friends.

One American army officer sends back a story of a British army officer questioning a German officer who had been taken prisoner. They had both been educated at the same university. So at the end of the questioning the British officer said to the German prisoner, "Now, just talking as we used to talk, what do you Germans really think of the Italians?"

To which the German officer replied: "I should say just about what the Russians think of the British and the Americans."

Prime Minister Churchill's speech a week ago won much respect in America because it was recognized as a practical statement from the viewpoint of Britain's interests.

If our government tries to put the postwar program on any sentimental basis, then you will have the outcry against becoming Santa Claus for the world.

There is a place for sentiment among the nations and no one can exclude it You can't exclude the respect of one people for the achievements of another, nor the admiration of one people for the forms of governments and the institutions of another people To try to squeeze out all such considerations would be contrary to human nature.

But those must come of their own free will. Affection can be won, perhaps, but never commanded

As we try to build out of this war, we have to recognize that although we have known and been fond of many Germans the German state has been a menace to our peace and security and it must be disarmed and kept disarmed and perhaps divided We have to recognize that Great Britain and Russia on either side of Germany, are the two logical allies that we must depend upon to form the nucleus of nations that will join together to protect each other

There isn't any sentiment in a mutual fire-insurance company But it is worth belonging to

HOUSE AWAITS REPORTING OF BIGGEST BUDGET

Finance Committee Expected To Recommend Passage of $360,000,000 Bill Soon.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS — An air of expectancy hung over the Ohio house of representatives today as the house finance committee indicated that it was about ready to recommend for passage the $369,000,000 general appropriations bill.

While the big bill, which in addition to providing for the financial operation of the state government for the current biennium, would give 10 per cent pay raises to 20,000 state employes, may not come out today, as was predicted last Saturday by Committee Chairman Paul Ballard (R., Jackson) nevertheless Ballard did say that it was "about ready to come out"

The statehouse corridors also buzzed with the rumor that the Ross bill relaxing female labor standards, at present sidetracked in the senate, would be supplanted by the Tarr bill in the house, which accomplishes about the same objective.

In addition, there was considerable gubernatorial pressure on the house taxation committee to cause that body to report out the Kane sales tax repealer, to abolish the sales tax on restaurant meals and prescription medicines. The bill, previously passed by the upper chamber, has been deadlocked in the committee since January 28

Thus the legislature, after 13 weeks of jockeying, finally was beginning to show signs of shooting for sine die adjournment. Leaders previously predicted that the solons would wind up their affairs by May 1.

Meanwhile, the controversial Reimers bill, to provide a retirement system for judges, was reconsidered by the senate and passed 19-13. Last Thursday the bill met defeat when it garnered only 16 "yea" votes, one less than the constitutional majority required.

Sen. Fred Reimers (R., Cincinnati) author of the bill, amended it before passage to provide that the percentage which the judges contribute be upped from 2½ per cent to four per cent. This move apparently overcame enough criticism to allow the bill to pass.

Sen Albert Daniels (R Greenfield) attacked the measure on the ground that it would provide excessive pensions ranging to $6,000 a year, or one-half the judges' annual salaries. He warned that a stench would be raised in the nostrils of the public similar to that which followed the attempt by congressmen to provide a pension system for members of the national legislature.

OPA CUTS PRICE OF USED TRUCKS AND TRAILERS

All Commercial Vehicles Put Under Percentage Ceiling By New Order.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The OPA today brought the nation's stockpile of used commercial motor vehicles under price control for the first time, sharply reducing abnormal prices being charged by some dealers.

The new regulation, establishing ceilings at a percentage of the value of the vehicle when new, is expected to halt the activities of speculators which have resulted in some instances in prices that are 200 per cent or more over the normal value of the used truck, OPA said.

Providing an incentive for the reconditioning of used models, the regulation, which becomes effective April 26, is also expected to result in the release of many used vehicles presently out of operation. OPA said that these vehicles have been withheld from sale by speculators in anticipation of a shortage of transportation vehicles causing further price advances.

Covered by the regulation are complete trucks, tractors, full-trailers, semi-trailers, ambulances, hearses, omnibuses, carryall suburbans, delivery sedans, utility sedans, coupes fitted with pickup boxes, cab pickups, as well as chassis and bodies for all these vehicles.

Excluded are passenger automobiles, taxicabs, station wagons, vehicles operated on rails, self-track-laying vehicles, or farm and warden tractors designed and used for agriculture purposes.

Two pricing methods are provided for resales, one for the vehicles "as is," the other for those reconditioned and guaranteed for at least 1,000 miles or 30 days. The maximum "as is" percentage is 90 per cent, this being for vehicles less than six months old. The percentages which change every six months, gradually decline to 26 per cent for those more than six years old

Maximum "reconditioned and guaranteed" percentage is 97 per cent for vehicles less than six months old, a gradual reduction ending at 68 per cent for vehicles more than five years old.

The regulation applies to all sales whether made by a dealer or a private owner or at an auction, thus preventing "schemes" such as the sale of trucks by an "individual" in reality "fronting" for a speculator.

CO-ED, NEGRO COOK MURDERED

Coroner Sees Robbery as Motive In Killing of Pair Near Akron.

(By Associated Press)

AKRON — Summit County Coroner R. E Amos today returned a verdict of murder in the deaths of Lucile Daprano, 23, Kent State university co-ed, and George W. Reynolds, 55, Twin Lakes Country Club cook, whose bullet-riddled bodies were found last night in a car parked along a wooded stretch of road halfway between Cleveland and Akron.

Dr. Amos said the girl, a senior from Cleveland, was found lying in the front seat, her left lung and heart pierced by bullets. Reynolds, a negro cook, was in the back seat with bullet holes in his back and chest, the coroner said. He estimated both were dead since 10 p. m. Sunday.

The coroner indicated the two might have been the victims of robbers He said Miss Daprano had left her Cleveland home with several bills of large denominations, but that her purse, found with the body, contained only 41 cents.

Dr. Amos said the girl worked the past two years as a part-time waitress at the country club where Reynolds was employed

The coroner said his report was based on his finding that bullets removed from the woman's body were of different caliber than those taken from the body of the cook.

Deputy Sheriff Jeffers said court records showed Reynolds had been convicted of manslaughter in March 1936, for a slaying that followed a quarrel over a woman.

ANTI-FREEZE KILLS CONVICTS

Four Dead, Six In Hopeless Condition After Drinking Fluid In Barracks.

(By United Press)

WEBSTER SPRINGS, W. Va — Four convicts were dead and six others were in critical condition today after drinking anti-freeze solution which prison camp guards said they sneaked into their barracks.

Physicians at a Buckhannon hospital reported this morning there was no hope the six would recover. All ten men were prison trusties at a road camp near Webster Springs, prison guards said.

State Road Commissioner Ernest L Bailey said today the men still living were too ill to tell all of what happened but that inquiry indicated the men had drained anti-freeze from state road equipment and drunk it later in their barracks One prisoner was found dead in his quarters, one died en route to the hospital, and the other two died this morning at the hospital, Bailey said.

The road commissioner said manufacturers of the anti-freeze solution in Charleston had been contacted, but they informed him there was no antidote for the poison.

Hospital attendants identified the dead as Braiden Wiseman, 21, Kanawha county; John White, 26, Putnam county; Jesse W. Harless, 22, Boone county, and Earl Heavener, 23, Pendleton county.

Those being treated were identified as John Withrow, 24, Bellburn; Harry Sickles, 27, Fairmont, Richard Fred Hickman, 21, Harrison county; Lossie Ellis, 29 Henlawson Hansford Gordon Saunders, 25, Dunbar; and James Lawrence, 25, Martinsburg.

IN HOLLYWOOD-- By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — When Mickey Rooney's studio filed an appeal for his draft deferment as a vital employe (he was later deferred after taking a physical exam) it may have put Mickey in the middle but it also brought out in the open—and dramatically—Hollywood's increasing jitters on the actor shortage.

The airing should be healthy

Hollywood had been kidding itself (not without encouragement) that it might enjoy some sort of recognition as an essential industry

Coons

Some of its technical workers indeed had been given deferred status indicating that motion pictures were held in some esteem as war-important Nothing had been said about actors other than the official word of the Screen Actors' Guild which protested against blanket deferment

So we had an industry whose propaganda and morale value was lavishly praised whose work in bond-selling and camp-entertainment was acclaimed, left in a most peculiar position It should go ahead and make pictures—and get its actors, a prime ingredient of same where it could

The result? Through enlistment or draft Hollywood has lost these stars and featured players Clark Gable Robert Montgomery Douglas Fairbanks, jr, Melvyn Douglas Tyrone Power Alan Ladd, James Stewart John Payne Lew Ayres Gene Raymond Wayne Morris Gene Autry Ronald Reagan Victor Mature Tim Holt Eddie Albert Bill Holden, Burgess Meredith, Lee Tracy, Robert Sterling Jeffrey Lynn, Van Heflin, Stirling Hayden, Dan Daily, jr, Tony Martin, Douglas McPhail, Richard Ney Ray Middleton, Lee Frederick, Richard Denning, Jack Briggs Lee Bonnell MacDonald Carey and others of more or less prominence

Robert Taylor George Montgomery and perhaps George Sanders are making their last films before departure.

And the new leading men? There are some, but the increased drafting of married men leaves scant hope that they will be around long enough to become names.

There are stars still around (as of this writing, at least) —the older character people the family men the romantic leads of more advanced years younger ones still awaiting call and doing outstanding war work while waiting together with those rejected for physical reasons like Errol Flynn

Over-age, even in the new order making '38 to 45 men subject to call would be Monte Woolley Lionel Barrymore Wallace Beery, Ronald Colman Victor McLaglan, Warner Baxter William Powell Richard Dix Walter Pidgeon perhaps a few others

Family men—Don Ameche, Bing Crosby John Wayne Bob Hope James Cagney, Fred MacMurray Fredric March, Phil Regan, Gary Cooper John Garfield Richard Whorf Kent Smith Pat O'Brien Robert Young among them—have been studio life-savers but family status is increasingly shaky cause for deferment

peace talks, union spokesmen said privately that the government must change the war labor board's little steel formula controlling wages if it expects labor to draft agreements intended to help the war effort.

President Roosevelt had three times postponed his meeting with labor leaders to discuss wages, apparently because the controversy over the little steel formula was a key issue in New York wage negotiations between UMW President John L. Lewis and the country's soft coal operators.

The threat of an immediate strike has now disappeared from the soft coal fields and it was believed that the White House could not discuss wage stabilization with other labor leaders without appearing to take a hand in the Lewis negotiations.

The labor peace talks between the AFL and CIO were resumed at 10 o'clock in a downtown Washington hotel. It was believed that the present session would continue throughout the day and then be recessed until some time next week.

FEDERAL SALES TAX LOOMING

GOP Leaders See Drive After Pay-as-You-Go Levy Plan Fails.

ures are taken to make sure we collect in full what is already levied," Carlson said "If the pay-as-you-go plan is rejected finally, then there's no way out but through a general sales tax."

Democratic leaders insisted that the house's 215 to 198 vote against the Carlson-Ruml plan reflected a demand for a suitable compromise between the total forgiveness proposal and the non-abatement plan for a 20 per cent withholding at the source recommended by the ways and means committee.

But there was considerable sentiment among the Democrats, and some Republicans, to leave the whole question of collection methods rest This came from members of the ways and means committee who are anxious to begin work on bills to extend the Guffey bituminous coal commission act, which expires April 26, and the president's authority over reciprocal trade agreements, expiring June 12. The urgency on these measures, they said, might delay the pay-as-you-go issue indefinitely.

Rep. Robert Ramspeck (D., Ga.), house Democratic whip, said he had found a lot of members on both sides of the house who voted to send the pay-as-you-go issue back to the ways and means committee because they were satisfied with the present quarterly payment system of collecting income taxes.

The showdown in the long argument over making income taxpayers current by canceling all or a part of their 1942 taxes came late yesterday in a confusing series of parliamentary maneuvers:

Sitting as a committee of the whole to consider amendments, the house voted 199 to 188 by teller count to substitute the Carlson-Ruml plan for the ways and means committee's bill.

When the committee arose, the full forgiveness plan was offered for formal house action and rejected by a roll call vote of 215 to 198.

The house then adopted a motion by Carlson which sent the entire pay-as-you-go question back to the ways and means committee for further deliberation. The roll call vote was 218 to 168.

It was the first time in many years that the house has returned a tax bill to the ways and means committee. It also was the first time in the memory of veteran members that the house has failed to back up tentative action taken in the committee of the whole.

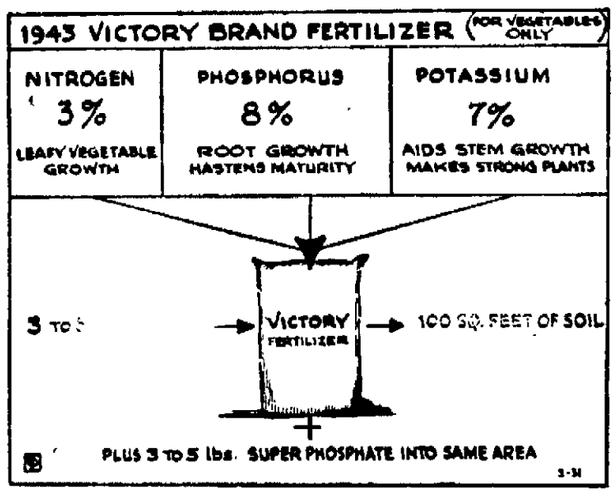
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Feeding the Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY.
(Released By Central Press Assn.)

Fertile soil is necessary in the Victory vegetable garden so that the plants can grow as rapidly as possible. Vegetables which mature rapidly are more tender than those which grow slowly in poor soil. There is a great difference in the appearance, taste and yield of vegetables which have been properly fed while growing.

For soil feeding a balanced commercial fertilizer should be used, that is one containing nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium, the three basic plant foods. This year the gardener will have to use the Victory garden fertilizer, comprising 3 per cent nitrogen, 8 per cent phosphorus and 7 per cent potassium, and this fertilizer by law cannot be used for other than the vegetable garden.

The Victory fertilizer should be worked into the soil prior to planting or seeding. The fertilizer should be hoed in so that it is available for the plant roots to a depth of 3 or 4 inches. Merely raking the fertilizer into the soil leaves it too near the surface to do the most good.

As pointed out in the accompanying Garden-Graph 3 to 5 pounds of Victory fertilizer should be used for every 100 square feet of soil. To give still greater stimulation to plant growth work 3 to 5 pounds of superphosphate into each 100 square feet of tilled soil.

Veterans Score In Hilarious Community Play Comedy Roles

good voice and easy stage presence.

Mrs. Joy A. Herbert played the second poisoning old maid. The lines called for her to be somewhat the subordinate of the two sisters and she accomplished that while still keeping in character and providing plenty of laughs.

All in all, "Arsenic and Old Lace" was probably one of the most entertaining productions yet staged by the players under the veteran direction of Mrs. E. K. Bacon.

Such established players as James Eberly, Ferd Loykovich, Paul Bell, Ernest Wesson, George Kirtley, and Gerald Van Arnam turned in performances of their highly individual roles that did credit to their long record with the players.

Mary Van Luit, a newcomer, did not very clearly define her characterization but her appearance behind the footlights is good. She will undoubtedly be seen again and her appearance will be welcome.

Glen Lewis, George Kirtley, and Christ Van Luit handled smaller parts well. Kirtley had a particularly effective Irish brogue.

But one criticism remains to be leveled at the whole production that cannot be side-stepped.

A great many people could hear only a small portion of the lines during the entire first act. As one member of the audience commented at intermission, "This looks like a good play; I wonder how it sounds."

Some seasons ago a controversy raged over the acoustics of the auditorium. That doesn't need to be gone into again Some of the cast—notably Schettler and Isaly—could be heard distinctly in every line from their first entrance to the last exit.

Others could scarcely be heard at all in the first act, and only with difficulty later in the play when the audience's ears had become accustomed to the strain.

Now, there is one very simple remedy for that. Any observer could be invited to sit at the rear of the auditorium during rehearsal and yell "I can't hear," every time a line is missed. That gets annoying, but it gets results.

Not being heard is strictly an amateur fault and should not have to be pointed out to a group with the Community Players' experience

The editorial columns of The News-Journal have already praised the players for undertaking a production under the difficulties arising in wartime. That praise can well be repeated after last night's production, and part of it should be shared by Louis Meisse, technical director, and his assistants for their fine setting as well as by all the others backstage who contributed to the smooth performance of Joseph Kesselring's play.

Topping off the performance was the second curtain call. The twelve "corpses" marched onto the stage in a surprise bow-out that delighted the audience.

the purpose of the intensified Anglo-American aerial offensive.

"It is not out of the question," he quoted, "that these raids are a prelude to an invasion of Europe."

An air ministry review, issued in connection with the 25th anniversary Thursday of the formation of the RAF, and British Typhoon fighters and Lancaster and Mosquito bombers, together with other planes "which must remain secret and nameless," are steadily sapping the enemy's strength.

Churchill's reference in commons yesterday to British forces being "in position" on undisclosed fronts touched off much speculation.

There was a possibility that the prime minister merely was striking another blow in the Allied war of nerves, just as Hitler and his propaganda ace, Jooseph Goebbles, attempted unsuccessfully in 1940 and 1941 to make Britain jittery over the prospect of a German invasion.

Germany was known to be strengthening fortifications in both western and southern Europe. A Madrid dispatch quoted an Algiers report that German officers captured in Tunisia said Hitler ordered German Erwin Marshal Rommel to stand fast at least until defense works along the Mediterranean coast could be completed.

The dispatch said the fortifications began almost at the Turkish frontier, ran around the promontories of Greece and Italy and along the south coast of France.

British Mosquito bombers, before inclement weather settled over Europe last night, struck at the Phillips radio and tube factory at Eindhoven, Holland, at dusk.

The fliers approached their target from roof-top level and scored direct hits on the factory, which soon was enveloped by smoke and flames, the ministry said.

Meantime, Stockholm reports said Berlin dispatches indicated that the British raid on Berlin Monday night was by far the biggest of the war, exceeding even that of Saturday night, when 900 to 1,000 tons of bombs were dropped.

Big fires broke out, especially in the suburbs where most of Berlin's factories are situated, dispatches said. Many Berlin streets were said to be closed entirely to traffic, some of them—including the famous Unter Den Linden, the principal shopping and commercial thoroughfare—since Saturday night raid.

"Money isn't everything"—now you have to have points, in addition to the cash.

Watch your step tomorrow—it's April Fool day, remember, and someone might start a rumor that something else is soon to be rationed.

According to Senator Truman, "There's been too much of this cheating" on defective war materials—but any of it would seem to be "too much."

Partisan Line-Up on Ruml Tax Plan

PARTISAN politics, rather than actual merits or demerits of tax plans being considered by congress, seems to have influenced yesterday's voting on the Ruml plan for putting income taxes on a pay-as-you-go basis.

The close vote of 215 to 198 in the house was so nearly along party lines, with Republicans supporting and Democrats opposing the measure, that interpretation can scarcely be other than that politics is playing an important part in the controversy.

Except for the charge that the Ruml plan of "forgiving" last year's taxes would work to the advantage of some persons in the higher income brackets, and that Beardsley Ruml has a selfish interest in promoting the plan, it seems to make little difference whether income tax payments are based on 1942 or 1943 incomes, and the contention that anything would be actually "lost" by the change is not impressive.

It is important, however, for congress to get together, as quickly as possible, on SOME tax plan which will eliminate the appearance of political party line-up, so that the people of this country may become assured that the non-partisan unity that is being asked of them is also being displayed by their representatives in government.

City Boys Can Learn Farm Work

MANY city boys can be used on farms this summer. That is, if they can learn quickly enough to do the work required. Farmers naturally want experienced help, and most city boys have little idea of the intelligence and skill required.

By the same token, city-bred boys can probably learn more in a summer's farm work, under the direction of a good farmer, than they ever learned before in the same length of time. And if they could grasp that fact in the beginning, it would be more profitable all round. Agricultural agents point out these facts to city boys wanting farm jobs for the summer, or willing to take them;

That inexperienced boys should go to work humbly, realizing their ignorance and eager to gain experience;

That one boy may be valuable, but two boys together may not be worth any more than their board;

That groups of boys require competent supervisors;

That the work of young help on vegetable farms is mostly weeding.

It may be added that a new theory, said to be spreading among farm experts, holds that weeding is usually overdone, and one or two weedings are usually enough for the season. But it may be hard for city boys to convince farmers of that.

World Security Through Unity

SPEAKING of the fruitless period between the last great war and this one, Anthony Eden said at Annapolis: "If there is one lesson we should have learned from distresses of those years, it is surely this: that we cannot be careless about what is happening next door or on the other side of the street. No nation can close its frontiers and hope to live secure. We shall only find it by the greatest possible measure of co-operation. The United Nations, and in particular the United States, the British commonwealth, China and the Soviet Union, must act together in war and peace."

Will these Big Four nations make themselves a permanent team for equitable enforcement of world peace, as trustees of modern civilization? That, apparently, is the big question that will soon confront them. Britain and China are ready for it. Russia was advocating it years ago, but was snubbed by the democracies. Most Americans now seem convinced that there can be no safety except in united security, maintained by strong nations of good will. The form of it, however, is still uncertain and the war to establish it is still to be won.

State Barriers To Trade

NOTHING has done more to disunite states than the tariff barriers erected in recent years, under various pretexts. Not only have they tended to destroy interstate commerce and thus impoverish the country, but they have been contrary to the federal constitution, which clearly declares that states shall not establish tariff laws against each other.

It seems incredible that in view of the harm they do to the nation as a whole, the constitutional prohibition, apparently, has not been invoked to stop the practice. Warnings have been given over and over again that such procedure was "Balkanizing the United States." That is, turning the union into a mere group of states which, in unwise efforts to take advantage of their neighbors, were restricting commerce and thus tending to impoverish each other. Professing to protect home industries, they interfere with industry in general and thus their efforts react against themselves. It is done mostly by "trick rulings for truckers."

The Office of Defense Transportation has finally moved to stop this procedure by corrective action among the 41 state legislatures in session this year. Might it not be better to invoke directly the basic constitutional ban, and have the Supreme Court stop this practice once for all?

Hitler's Oversight

HITLER is said to have studied carefully the military history of the last war, in order to avoid the errors that caused Germany's defeat. If he has, it is strange that he did not heed the word of Erich von Falkenhayn, German chief of staff from 1914 to 1916.

Von Falkenhayn, like Hitler, tried his hand at conquering Russia, and failed like Hitler, accounting for his failure in these terms:

"It is impossible to defeat an enemy who is firmly resolved to escape, regardless of the sacrifices in territory and men, and who has the vast spaces of Russia at his disposal for the purpose."

Hitler will be made to pay the penalty for his unwillingness to be guided by his country's experience in the past.

Hard Fighting Still In Prospect In Africa Despite Allied Progress

By LOUIS F. KEEMLE

SMASHING the Mareth line and the occupation of El Hamma and Gabes marks the beginning of the end for the Axis in North Africa. It is no longer a question of whether, but of how long.

It would be far wide of the mark to assume that Rommel is crushed or that long, hard fighting is not still in prospect. It would be still wider to look forward to an early invasion of southern Europe.

Depending on the time it takes to clean out Tunisia, a European invasion is possible later this year. Organization for a successful invasion will take months.

There is always the sinister question mark of the German submarine campaign to be considered. Unless it can be overcome or at least checked appreciably, the supply problem makes an invasion anywhere on southern or western Europe extremely hazardous.

Rommel has been defeated but not knocked out. He has shot his final bolt and is no longer capable of resuming the initiative except on a minor local scale.

ROMMEL'S object has been to fight a delaying action in Tunisia to shove back the Allied time table for an invasion of Europe as far as possible. He succeeded to a certain extent but not as well as he might have if Allied tenacity had not upset his hopes.

His boldest stroke was a little more than a month ago, when he drove through the Kasserine pass, 12 miles from the Algerian border and threatened to cut the Allied force in Tunisia in half. With their main base at Tebessa, inside Algeria, threatened, the Americans rallied and drove the enemy headlong back toward the coast.

Baffled there, Rommel established strong points in the hills guarding the approaches to the coastal plain to protect his flank in case of retreat, and concentrated on holding Mareth.

He evidently had not counted on Gen. Montgomery's ability to flank the Mareth line by an amazing march through the desert to El Hamma, nor on the Americans who are pressing dangerously hard in the regions of El Guetar, Maknassy, Sidi Bou Zid and Fondouk.

MILITARY necessity would indicate a Rommel retreat northward along the coastal road to Sfax and Sousse — both of which, incidentally, are already being softened up by Allied bombers.

Much depends on his ability to reach Sousse and join forces with the northern half of his army in the Tunis-Bizerte corner before the Americans break through in central Tunisia.

If he makes it, fighting a continual rear guard action against the hotly pursuing Eighth army, Rommel still should be able to put up a stiff if hopeless fight in northeastern Tunisia. As usual, he probably has extracted the bulk of his German forces from the Mareth hot corner, even if some of them were among the 8,000 prisoners taken.

Home Doctoring

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE shortage of doctors has pushed the sale of books which advise the family about medical matters. I see that The Home Medical Adviser, edited by Dr. Morris Fishbein, has jumped greatly in sales. This is all to the good because this a safe book.

There are, however, all varieties of books of this sort on the market, some of which are not so good. There are four kinds of "home doctor" books or "home doctor" articles: good, bad, indifferent and dangerous.

People frequently tell me that they read my articles religiously. The best advice I can give them is what Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes said to a woman who liked to read doctor articles: "Look out, some day you will die of a misprint."

Generalities Dangerous.

There is some good advice in the January number of "Hygeia," the health magazine of the American Medical Association, about these books.

Suspect broad generalities. It is impossible to make a statement which will cover every individual instance of illness. The doctor, during his school days of training, spends most of his time learning to individualize. Oversimplification of health rules usually means that the rules are worthless.

Be critical of instructions. Medical authors who tell you what medicine or treatment to take without any qualifications are likely to get you into trouble. Even if you are advised on what to eat—which is fairly safe—you should check with your doctor.

Never accept a medical writer's diagnosis. The conservative and ethical writer on health will attempt to give instructions about the working of the body, but when he leads you to attempt self-diagnosis and self-treatment, look out.

A recent experience of mine illustrates the danger of this tendency on the part of the public. I wrote an article in which I mentioned the trace elements in foods. This was done simply to announce research and advances in medicine. Among these trace elements were zinc and cobalt.

Letters.

I received several letters from people who wanted to know what foods contained zinc and cobalt and how much zinc they should take under certain circumstances. As I explained, it is impossible for anybody to eat a balanced diet without getting some zinc and cobalt, but only small amounts are necessary for human nutrition.

People who are persuaded by this knowledge to add to the amount of zinc or cobalt that they normally have in their diet are in danger of getting metallic poisoning.

Dave Boone Says:

JAMES A. FARRELL, president of United States Steel for twenty-one years, is dead at 80. He was a top-drawer specimen of the type of self-made American of whom it's become the fashion to mock and belittle in this country.

Jim Farrell went to work in a wire mill at 15 years of age, became a wire puller in Pittsburgh at 20, got to be sales manager of the Pittsburgh Wire company at 26 and went up the ladder by dint of hard work. "Every American boy by strict application to details and by hard work can master the technique of any business and do what I did," he once said.

Well, it's the style to scoff at that sort of thing today, and you can get ridiculed and lambasted for just subscribing to the idea.

Nobody can laugh Big Jim Farrell off, however, and the day is coming when there will be a return to old-fashioned respect for his kind.

* * *

Probably just now a boy entering a mill and showing an inclination to work extra hard and without regard for the hours would be taken aside and warned in no time that he was incurring the animosity of the whole works, including the neighboring politicians.

Halifax Praised Negro's Idea to Send U. S. Commission to India

WASHINGTON—The full story of Lord Halifax's visit with Walter White of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has never been told. It was probably the first time a British ambassador conferred with a prominent Negro leader.

The first conference occurred in New York City just a year ago and came close to having reverberating consequences. White, who heads one of the most important negro organizations in the United States, had had some correspondence with Prime Minister Churchill regarding the status of negroes in the British West Indies. Churchill forwarded this correspondence to his ambassador in Washington, who in turn conferred with White at the home of Thomas Lamont, of the J. P. Morgan firm, in New York.

Viscount Halifax, one of the most courteous and scholarly envoys Britain has ever sent to the United States, opened the conversation with some remarks about negro war morale in the United States, the importance of keeping that morale high, and the work Walter White was doing toward it.

This brought the following remark from White:

"Your Excellency, do you want to confine this conversation to the United States or may we talk about other parts of the world which affect the United States."

Indian Independence.

LORD HALIFAX looked a bit surprised, but replied that he would be glad to talk about the entire world. Whereupon White pointed out that the Indian question had a great effect upon negroes in the United States and their war morale.

He added that he understood the British position regarding India that independence could not be separated from the clash of Mohammedan-Hindu races, etc. He said he also understood that the English resented the visits of American officials in India to study the question of independence.

"Therefore I would like to make this suggestion," continued White. "Why not send a commission of top-ranking Americans to India to advise and consult sympathetically with you regarding the entire Indian question?

"I suggest, for instance, a commission including Wendell Willkie, leader of the 'loyal opposition' to President Roosevelt; also Justice Felix Frankfurter, and, third, a prominent American negro. I suggest this because of the effect it would have not only upon the Indians and the Chinese, but on the negroes of the United States and the millions of colored races in the Pacific."

White went on to point out that with the Japs on the Burmese border (as they were in March, 1942) nothing could influence Indians more and give them more confidence in British pledges regarding the future than a friendly American commission of this kind.

Lord Halifax leaned forward, tapped White on the knee and said, "You know, that's the most practical suggestion I've heard."

White also proposed an international commission to protect India from Jap invaders. He suggested that the commission be commanded by Gen. MacArthur, with one Chinese general, one Indian officer and one British officer.

Roosevelt Consulted.

WITH the British ambassador's consent, the plan was presented to President Roosevelt, who in turn asked Undersecretary of State Welles to confer with White. Welles had several talks with White, and felt that the idea would help to counter the arguments of Gandhi and Nehru that the United States was working with the British to continue British imperialism.

At that particular moment, the Japs were advancing almost daily toward India, the Indian population was apathetic and many leaders seemed ready to go over to the Japs. Something had to be done to stir up Indian self-resistance.

However, after further conversations among the state department, the White House and the British embassy, it was decided that this was not the moment to appoint American commissions to co-operate with India.

Several weeks passed, then months. Gandhi and other Indian leaders were imprisoned. The Japs turned toward Australia and the Solomons. Later White called at the British embassy. Lord Halifax received him most cordially, as always, but with no enthusiasm for White's previous idea.

"You know," remarked the ambassador philosophically, the greatest mistake the Japanese made was not to follow up Singapore immediately. Now the danger to India is over."

Labor Umpire.

HIS NAME doesn't hit the headlines but one of the most efficient backstage operators in smoothing out labor-war relations is former Assistant Secretary of Labor Ed McGrady, now aide to Undersecretary of War Patterson.

McGrady knows the viewpoint of labor, can speak its language, also understands the war department and its production difficulties. He acts as a sort of umpire between labor and the army. The other day, for instance, he got a call from R. J. Thomas of the United Automobile Workers saying that four men had been fired from Detroit factories by the army for being subversive.

McGrady investigated, found that the four men were guilty of stirring up a strike in violation of contract, but had not been subversive. So at a meeting with Undersecretary Patterson and three high-ranking generals, McGrady argued:

"These men should have been fired all right; I agree to that. But when you brand a man as subversive it means that he was co-operating with the enemy against his own country. If this report stands on their records they could never get a job anywhere."

Undersecretary Patterson agreed with McGrady, and the report was altered, though the men were not reinstated to their jobs.

Odd How You Run Across People; Midget Medical Kit Within Reach of Pilot.

NORTH AFRICA—One day Mrs. Sara Harvey of Nashville, Tenn., wrote a letter to me, and it finally found its way over here. Mrs. Harvey asked me to look up her husband in England, and tell him to hurry up and get the war won and get back home to her.

Lots of people write me letters like that. Unfortunately the world is a big place and our troops are scattered. Only once in a blue moon do I happen to be in the vicinity of the husband or sweetheart asked for.

But the Harvey case turned out just right. When Mrs. Harvey wrote, her husband and I both were in England. When the letter arrived we were both in Africa, and Mrs. Harvey's ever-loving was right under my nose. All I had to do was walk through a bunch of palm trees and across a little sand, and there he was.

He is Sergt. Benson Harvey, radio man with a fighter squadron. He was playing catch with a baseball right after supper when I found him.

Harvey and another fellow live in a pup tent just big enough to hold their blankets. Their private slit-trench is just a jump away. A small tinted picture in a glass frame hangs on the tiny pole in the back of the tent. The picture is of Mrs. Harvey.

Sergeant Harvey is a young fellow. Back in Nashville he used to be janitor, phone operator and all-around flunky at an apartment house. He is quiet, friendly, sincere, slow-speaking—you'd almost know he was from Tennessee. His captain thinks a lot of him.

He is one of four brothers scattered all over the world. Maj. Robert Harvey is a doctor now on his way overseas, probably to Africa. James is a chief petty officer in the navy. He was through Pearl Harbor and the Solomons battles, and is somewhere at sea. His wife was once notified he was dead—but he wasn't. The fourth brother is Frank, an aviation machinist's mate, who was on the Wasp when she was sunk.

Sergeant Harvey says it'll be tough when they get home, for they'll all want to tell their lies at the same time. Harvey has been in the army two and a half years already. He has things pretty nice, as things go over here. I'm glad Mrs. Harvey wrote me about him.

WHILE we were roaming around, Sergeant Harvey took me into the squadron's little dispensary and hospital. It's a big hole in the ground about four feet deep, all tented over. It's about the nicest improvised operating room around here.

We got to talking with Sergt. Burt Thompson, of Cleveland. He used to be a production clerk in a hydraulic-equipment factory in Cleveland, but now he's in the medical section and has hung around doctors so long he's started inventing things.

The air forces make up a medical kit for pilots to take with them on their missions. It's in a canvas case with a zipper, and is placed behind the pilot's seat. It's all right if you can get to it, but a wounded fighter pilot can't always reach it.

So Sergt. Thompson has assembled a smaller kit, which a pilot can carry right in the map-pocket on his trousers leg. It is packed in the little tin box our dust-goggles come in—about the size of a Nabisco-wafer box. It has everything in it from bandages to a half grain of morphine which you can inject yourself. It even has a tourniquet, wrapped around the outside. Sergeant Thompson gave me one of them.

"Are you going to issue these to pilots?" I asked.

"We'd like to, but some new regulation has to come from headquarters first," he said.

"That'll take months," I said. "Why don't you just issue them anyhow?"

"That's what we intend to do," said Sergeant Thompson with a little grin.

THERE is now starting to grow up among the soldiers over here I've noticed, a little feeling of resentment at and superiority over the soldiers back in the states.

I'm sorry to see this, for I think it's unfair. Few soldiers have the slightest control over whether they're to be in Africa or Florida. Soldiers don't choose; they're sent. The ones back home aren't cowards, and are no doubt itching to get over here.

There is one thing concerning home life that soldiers are absolutely rabid on, and that is strikes. You just mention a strike at home either to soldier or officer, living on monotonous rations in the mud under frequent bombing, and you've got a raving maniac on your hands.

A Farmer's Diary

A Mess of Greens

WHEN I was a small boy, I never saw a head of lettuce in the village grocery store, at this season of the year—nor the long green curly hothouse kind. Greens for a spring tonic were not sold.

But in the rich dirt of my mother's garden grew a cultivated row of low crowned dandelions flattened by the heavy weight of winter snow that banked against the five-foot picket fence. Also, above the furrowed path along the border, grew pursley and at one neglected corner, a colony of nettles. In the swamps, were tender translucent stems of marsh marigolds, and from the richer soil sprang the large, tender-stemmed poke family.

To make sure of abundant greens, besides all this, I saw my mother plant cabbage heads and turnips from the store in the moist cellar as soon as the ground stopped freezing. In a short while, both grew large, thrifty shoots that broke like blanched asparagus tips.

I wonder as I see the shelves of greens for sale in every market, if all the thrift and culinary knowledge of my mother's day has been forgotten. What housewife, now, could safely go into the fields and fencerows and woodlands and proudly gather a lusty pot of greens and prepare them for her family?

Who would be so wise as to gather the first tender shoots of the despised nettle, or the acid sprouts of common sorrel? These are weeds that all stock will shun in summer, but now they would add a delicious relish to the family table. The early low fleshy branches of pursley are so tender that merely steaming will make them palatable.

Not only did my mother draw these stems from the old iron pot, in which was thrown small squares of thick bacon, but drew off the liquor with it, in the dish. Another day, she cooked the tender shoots of cabbage and turnips in similar manner.

The fields, the meadows and the swamp, the woodlands and the brushy slope will still yield abundant vitamins and greens to keep a rural family well and happy. For a week or two, we have hugely enjoyed the crisp water cress that grows below the overflow of our little pond. The buds of red sassafras on the hill are a wholesome tonic—the roots can be had for the digging. The fleshy bark, stripped off and left to dry, then boiled in maple sap, produces a rich red drink more satisfying than coffee. With toast or crisp cookies to dunk into it — with cream and sugar added—a man has a real delicacy of springtime.

I would not wish to spoil the sales of grocer's greens. But I would rather wish that rural dwellers, far and near, might enjoy such spring greens as grow near every country house.
